

The Coach House Terrace Bar

Our Bar at Rosapenna is named after the reclaimed wood in which the main bar was fashioned from.

The reclaimed Pitch Pine timber used in the Coach House Terrace Bar is the same as that the original hotel was entirely built from and sadly burned to the ground in May 1962.

The Coach House sometimes referred to as the Carriage House was typically an outbuilding which was built to house horse-drawn carriages and related tack.

The wood for the hotel and much of the Mulroy Estate was imported from Norway in the late 19th century by the 4th Earl of Leitrim.
